APRIL 2022

I hope you are all doing so well! Lena and I wanted to update you on what God has been doing in our lives and ministry since we've gotten a few months into 2022.

First, I wanted to start off with a praise report. In November, Lena and I had our interview for her green card, and she officially was approved, so the majority of that whole process is over. So we wanted to say a huge thank you for praying for that. God came through and walked us through the whole way, as stressful and as time consuming as it was!

In our ministry, we have been doing a bunch of work with an awesome Christian non-profit called Share The Struggle. I have been helping them with their media and Lena has been helping them with their marketing and social media. Share The Struggle's mission is to meet individuals in the middle of their struggle and provide hope and healing through faith-based, expert-led content and experiences. Essentially what we have been doing is creating an entire masterclass video series course on anxiety and mental health management but in a faith-based way. I had the honor of being able to direct the production of the entire course and we officially launched just a couple months ago. I highly recommend checking it out as God has been using it in so many ways and freeing so many people of their struggles with anxiety and depression, as well as providing a course for churches to use in their teaching and small groups. Go check out the online course: www.sharethestruggle.org. The next course we are launching is about miscarriage and pregnancy loss, and it's essentially designed to help guide individuals to healing who have gone through those struggles from a faith-based perspective. So as I have been busy helping Share The Struggle launch these video courses and film them. Lena has been busy helping us promote on social media and essentially doing whatever we can to get this information out to a watching world through social media. It's been pretty cool to see how many lives God has been impacting just through the content we have been putting out on social media, providing tips on managing your anxiety, and how that relates to our relationship with God and walking others through healing in a faith-based form.

Anyway, it's been a pleasure sharing with you everything God has been doing in this ministry. What started out as a step of faith into a missionary based filmmaker, has led to so many incredible opportunities to share God's love through film and media, and looking back at the lives that have been impacted by it, the gospel that's been shared, and the people that have come to Christ, I am just so grateful for your support in this journey God has had me on, and now, not just me, but my wife too! So we pray God's blessing over each and everyone of you, and look forward to sharing more soon!
