Gratitude: An appreciative attitude for a favor or a benefit from someone else. Gratitude is expressed through thankfulness, which is the action and effect of giving thanks. Someone who feels gratitude wishes to give thanks after receiving a gift or a favor.

Goodness: One of the best human qualities because a good person is nice and kind. A kind person wishes to do good to others.

PATIENCE

Patience: The ability to tolerate, endure or cope with a certain situation while keeping calm. A patient person controls his temper and does not allow impatience to guide him.

Compassion: A merciful feeling that results from seeing someone else's suffering. The feeling motivates a person to respond in tenderness to another's pain or suffering to ease it, mend it or express sympathy. A compassionate person offers to help others soothe their pain.

Courage: The willpower to perform an action despite difficulties or obstacles. Courage is the ability to overcome fear and do what is right.

Integrity: Perceived in a person who is truthful, honorable and honest. A person with integrity is upright in his way of living.

Trust: The assurance or steadfast hope individuals have for themselves and others. Trusting is believing in the ability to grow and overcome in life. A person who is trustworthy is dependable and believes in her own potential.

FORGIVENESS

Forgiveness: The ability to forgive, offering somebody forgiveness for an offense. It is understanding someone else's mistake or harm. Forgiveness sets us free from anger or bitterness when somebody offends or hurts us.

Wisdom: The knowledge gained through study, good advice and experience that leads to a good life. Being wise means applying intelligence to a situation to make excellent decisions in life.

The Bible, which is the Word of God, says: "Faith is being sure of what we hope for and certain of what we do not see." (Hebrews 11:1) Faith is trusting in God and in His Word to apply it in our daily lives. Therefore, faith is believing in Jesus the Son of God, believing in His Word and living in a way that pleases God.

We invite you to keep practicing these values in your daily life. We also invite you to go to a Christian church where you and your family can learn and participate together.
